Significant appreciation potential.

The project spans 16 hectares of forest, located 64 km from Paso Tromen and 39 km from downtown Pucón. Located in the Huililco Valley, these lots offer a landscape and setting that inspire dreams and a vision for the future, surrounded by mountain rivers, lush native vegetation, flora, and fauna, and a development planned with care for the environment and sustainable growth, while keeping future generations in mind.

An excellent investment opportunity.

Living or investing in Pucón and Curarrehue offers a unique combination of natural beauty, culture, and economic opportunities. These towns, located in the Araucanía Region, have been designated a Zone of Tourist Interest (ZOIT), which promotes their sustainable development and makes them attractive to residents and investors alike.

Pucón stands out for its infrastructure and services, including hospitals, supermarkets, and a wide range of educational options, ensuring a high quality of life. Its natural surroundings —featuring the Villarrica volcano, lakes, and national parks— offer year-round activities, from winter sports to adventure tourism. Improved connectivity—such as the opening of its commercial airport and the dual-lane highway between Freire and Villarrica—has increased property values, making it a hub for real estate investment.

Curarrehue, located 40 km from Pucón, offers a more peaceful and authentic experience, with a strong presence of Mapuche
