Huife is a tourist area in the commune of Pucón, in Chile’s Araucanía Region. It is a popular destination known for its hot springs, waterfalls, rivers, and the beautiful natural surroundings.

The hot springs are one of Huife’s main attractions; nestled among forests and mountains, they offer visitors a relaxing and therapeutic experience. In addition, the waterfalls in the area—such as the Huife Waterfall and El León Waterfall—are breathtaking and make for an ideal spot to take photos and enjoy nature.
Huife also offers a wide variety of outdoor activities, such as hiking, horseback riding, rafting, and kayaking. Visitors can hike along the trails surrounding the area, such as the La India Dormida trail, named for a mountain shaped like a sleeping woman.
The Trancura River is another attraction in the area and is a
